A Bi-Annual Multi-lingual Research Journal of Literature, Culture and Vedic Knowledge Systems

About the Journal

Shodhdhara was started in the year 2012, with a view to promote and expand research in Indology, Literature, Culture and Vedic Knowledge Systems. The journal was a benign attempt of a great scholar Dr. P. C. Padhy who served in the college in the department of Sanskrit. Since then, the journal accepts quality research papers in disciplines of Humanities and Social Sciences.

The research papers are invited throughout the year though they are compiled for volumes published twice a year. The papers are scrutinized by the selection committee and original research work is accepted. The editors may reject the papers that are not up to the mark or the papers are sent back to the contributors for revision if these require slight modifications. The respective editors of languages and social sciences then recommend the papers to the chief editor who gives the final nod for publication.

Shodhdhara aims to bring quality research papers before the subscribers. It seeks to explore emerging areas of interest through interdisciplinary approach providing a sound platform for discussion. The ideas expressed in the papers are author's personal views that s/he proposes to explore. It is not necessary for the editors to conform to the views of the writer.

The journal is published in the print form by the principal, DAV College, Abohar. However the pdf versions of some earlier issues have been uploaded on the website. The subscribers and research scholars can visit davcollegeabohar.com for the past issues or any upcoming event.
